

WYKŁADY OTWARTE O RELACJACH POLSKO-INDYJSKICH

Szkoła Biznesu PW zaprasza do zarejestrowania się na wykłady otwarte w języku angielskim o relacjach polsko-indyjskich.

„Dobry Maharadża”- dr Janusz Wróbel

This is a story of hope and extraordinary hospitality. In the years 1942-48, about 5,000 Polish refugees from Soviet camps, including many children, found shelter in India. One of the places that Polish children reached was Balachadi, where Maharaja Digvijaysinhji, also known as "Jam Saheb", built a settlement for them near his summer palace. His kindness was commemorated in Warsaw with the Good Maharaja Square and the school's patronage on Bednarska Street.

Dr. Janusz Wróbel will tell about this extraordinary story of Polish-Indian relations.

"India as seen by Poles & Poland as seen by Indians" - Jawahar Jyothi Singh

India is not only the smell of curry and street chaos, but also a country full of contrasts, colours and opportunities. Although there are few Poles there, those who dare are discovering opportunities and new business prospects in India, breaking stereotypes.

Jawahar Jyothi Singh, President of IPCCI (Indo-Polish Chamber of Commerce and Industry) and a graduate of the Executive MBA program at the Warsaw University of Technology Business School, will talk about how Poles see India and how Indians see Poland.
